Paul Hemming Managing Director of C24 commented “we have had a fantastic 12 months despite the current market conditions; and we felt that now was the right time to expand on the C24 brand and to start and communicate the key value propositions of the business. We are adding new clients every month and felt that it was extremely important to introduce new collateral and imagery to aid in our drive for new client acquisition.”

“The website and collateral design reflects the nature of C24 and our ability to think a little differently about IT and the solutions we offer our clients.
